DOROTHY MAY ENTER PLEA TO MURDER CHARGE

Matricide is Reported to Have Signed Statement Admitting Her Guilt of Murder

DENIES CHARGE OF INSANITY

Dorothy Shrieks and Screams For Daddy in Wild Tones Following Fainting Spell

(By Universal Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—Dorothy Ellingson is slowly, but surely, coming to a full realization of the enormity of her crime. This is indicated by the frequent fainting spells, and it is indicated that she may grow tired of the long drawn out court procedure, rise up and plead guilty and ask for the mercy of the court.

At six o'clock last night Judge Harold Louderback swore in the jury that will try Dorothy Ellingson as to her sanity.

The jurors had hardly taken their oath when the young matricide went into a faint that was more spectacular than anything she has yet done of that nature.

Rising from her chair she fell to the floor. Her father went to her side and stretched her out upon the floor. In a few minutes she appeared to regain consciousness. Then piercing shrieks penetrated to the corridors of the Hall of Justice. "Daddy, daddy, daddy," Dorothy screamed in the wild tones of an animal in distress.

Defiant and angry at her attorneys and experts for pleading her insanity, Dorothy Ellingson emerged yesterday a rebel in her own defense.

The disclosure was made that on the very eve of her new trial she had given Dr. Joseph Catton, prosecution expert, a flat statement that she was sane and desired to go into court and plead guilty to the murder of her mother.

Dr. Catton says she told him her attorneys will not permit her to plead guilty. She is also quoted as saying that her attorneys did not take her into their confidence in deciding upon the sudden shift from the murder to the sanity trial.

George Lauritzen Not In Collision

George Lauritzen of the Richmond Navigation and Improvement company who according to report made to the police, backed a company truck into and severely damaged a Nash touring car on Monday evening, appeared at the police department yesterday and denied that he had been in such an accident, or that any truck of the company had been in the accident. The police are of the opinion that the driver of the truck who was in the collision gave an incorrect name to the police officer who investigated the accident.

Richmond Plans Celebration of Achievements With Big Party

After ten years of dilly-dallying Richmond is now on her way, the Chamber of Commerce having at last started things rolling on the inner harbor project.

Eviction notice has been served on the sea gulls, and within a year ships will be using the channel and the new wharf.

Also, within a year the new municipal hotel, modern, fire-proof, six stories high, the first approach to a sky-scraper in Richmond, will be ready for guests.

Likewise, within a year, the Richmond air field, another project of the Chamber of Commerce, will be the scene of great airplane activities. Therefore, Richmond, and the Chamber of Commerce, has a right to crow and is going to do it. Plans are, to start things off with a bang.

When? April 9th, evening.

Where? Richmond club house.

How? Dinner party, for members and their guests who sympathize.

What? Aye, there's the secret, to be strictly guarded.

More details will be announced later.

Life Threats Are Charged in Divorce

Charging that on two occasions her husband had threatened to kill her and her four year old son, Mrs. Mary Marie Van of Richmond yesterday filed suit for divorce against Arthur F. Van. She asks custody of the boy and an award of $33 monthly for support.

Mrs. Van alleges that on February 15 and March 23 Van made threats against her life and her son. On March 23, she says Van seized her by the throat, accused her of loving some one else and threatened to kill her. When her screams attracted a neighbor, she says, Van refused to let her go.

The married in 1919 and separated March 23.

Apartment House Plan Announced

An apartment house, to cost $20,000 will be erected on the east side of Eleventh street between Macdonald and Bissell avenues by Lambert Wierda, former city building inspector, but now connected with National Pavine company. It was announced yesterday. The work on construction will be started within several days by A. L. Rector, who is the contractor.

A two-story building and basement is called for in the plans, with a stucco exterior. The house will contain eight two-room apartments.

While riding with men unknown to him are made by Eland P. Howard of Richmond, in suit for divorce he instituted yesterday against Beulah Howard. Howard alleges that his wife has left home and remained away at night leaving their two children alone. They married in 1916 and separated on February 22 last. Tsar Calfee and Leo Dunnell are attorneys for plaintiff.

CITIZENS JOIN IN PROTEST ON UTILITY BILL

Assembly at Sacramento is Deluged With Protests Against Breed Amendment

MEANS ALMOST RUIN HERE

Increase of 40 Per Cent of Taxes Would Be Necessary in County in Bill Passes

Aroused to action following publication of the effect the Breed constitutional amendment to make gas and oil producing companies public utilities would have on Contra Costa, governing boards of municipalities, civic organizations and individuals yesterday wired and mailed a flood of protests to Assemblyman Robert P. Easley and Senator Will R. Sharkey at Sacramento, urging them to do their utmost to defeat the bill.

Views of some leading citizens on the question are given as follows:

Endangers Prosperous County

"The proposed constitutional amendment making oil companies public utilities endangers a prosperous, growing county. Contra Costa County, first in value of manufactured products, is dependent on industry. The property of a majority of our people is interwoven with and dependent upon the prosperity of our industries. The revolutionary and socialist proposal endangers great and finely balanced industries by threatening government regulation of all industries which is in no respect a public utility." District Attorney A. B. Tinning.

Taxes Would Aviate

"The measure to make producing oil companies public utilities is a vicious one and every effort to defeat it should be made. It would be ruinous to Contra Costa. I have not made a detailed investigation, but I believe that if the county should lose this source of revenue an increase of 40 per cent in taxes on other property owners would be necessary to make up the loss." County Auditor A. N. Sullenger.

Schools Would Be Hit

"Consider what would happen to schools which receive a large part of the taxes. Richmond would have approximately $200,000 cut off its revenue. Concord would be a heavy sufferer as the Associated Oil Company is the largest taxpayer of its high school district. The effects are almost too far reaching to contemplate." Tax Collector M. W. Joost.

Staggering to Richmond

"Declaring oil companies public utilities would be a staggering blow to Richmond. With a stroke it would wipe out all the work that has been done by Richmond for harbor improvement. An entire reassessment of the city would be necessary." Councilman E. J. Garward at meeting of Richmond city council.

TWO AUTO COLLISIONS

A collision, between cars driven by Cora Pace, 41 Washington avenue, and Rev. H. Oberholzer, 1419 Bissell avenue, occurred at the corner of Eighth and Macdonald last night. No injuries were sustained by either party.

Another collision occurred at Fourteenth and Bissell last night between cars driven by George C. Mitchell, 587, Ninth street, and Mrs. V. M. Helms, 684 Fourteenth street. There were no injuries sustained in this accident either.

HERE'S WHAT WILL HAPPEN IF OILS ARE MADE UTILITIES

No little concern was felt here yesterday over introduction in the legislature by Senator Breed of a constitutional amendment seeking to make companies manufacturing gasoline and oil public utilities, which would cause Contra Costa to lose this source of revenue in county taxation. Here is a sketch of what will happen in Contra Costa should such an amendment be adopted:

Richmond would lose $18,164 of its total $60,000 tax roll. A valuation of $26,000,000 would be tacked off the county rolls' total of $4,032,560 non operative property. County taxes of $252,630.22, which would have to be made up by other taxpayers.

Richmond, Rodeo, Martinez and Concord would be the principal sufferers among municipalities, as oil firms contribute heavily in taxes to these towns, with a big percentage going to schools. The Associated Oil Company is the biggest taxpayer of the Mt. Diablo High School District.

After deduction of the taxes paid by the oil companies an approximate 10 per cent increase would be required of the balance to make the tax rolls reach their present total.

A total of $195,000 in taxes would be cut from Richmond's total of $336,000.

Richmond's assessed valuation of $26,802,500 would be reduced by $9,768,125.

Several thousand dollars would be snipped off of Richmond's bonding capacity, limiting all improvement work here.

Hotel Plans Now Well Under Way As Fund Drive Opens

L. D. Barr, representative of the Hockenbury System, Incorporated, met with the Richmond Municipal Hotel Company at the Chamber of Commerce rooms yesterday. Arrangements were made for a fund campaign to be conducted by the Hockenbury system, to raise funds for the financing of the hotel construction.

All preliminary arrangements for the erection of the big hotel have now been completed. The financing campaign is expected to be well under way within a few days. The hotel will be located on the north-east corner of Tenth street and Nevins avenue and will be six stories high. It will be the most pretentious building yet undertaken in Richmond, and is expected to be completed within the year.

The Hockenbury System, Inc., under the direction of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce, made a survey here not long ago to determine whether a tourist hotel of the type proposed would pay. They were convinced that it would.

Pioneer Coal Co. Is Purchased By Canadian Family

The Pioneer Coal Co. was sold outright yesterday to Alex Ronald of Cumberland, B. C., Canada.

The sale was handled by Herbert Schrader and is said to have been sold for $10,000.

Ronald is an expert in the coal business having been connected with one of the biggest coal companies in British Columbia for the past 25 years.

Ronald is a married man having a wife and two daughters, one of latter, will assist her father in office work.

In buying the Pioneer Ronald has made a wise decision as the Pioneer Coal Co. is the oldest and the best paying coal business in Richmond.

Ronald's family will make their home in Richmond.

E. L. Vestall, formerly connected with McCracken's as a tailor, has opened new offices and tailoring shops in the Ballenger building.

River Water Is Denounced In Resolutions At Mass Meeting

By voice of delegated spokesman of the nine cities of the East Bay Municipal Utility District, by the presence of civic organizations representing the district at large, and by the testimony of district engineers and directors, the Sacramento river water plan of the East Bay Water Company was unequivocally condemned at a citizen's mass meeting held last night in Oakland.

It is many years since as large a mass meeting has been held in the Eastbay communities. Greater unanimity could not have prevailed at any gathering.

The sentiment of the meeting was condensed in a resolution, adopted by unanimous voice, calling upon the railroad commission to deny the water company a permit to develop a water source for the Eastbay upon the lower Sacramento river.

Provisions of the resolution are as follows:

1.—That the railroad commission require the water company to submit clear and convincing proof that a water shortage is imminent; that the Sacramento plan is feasible; that it will not increase the public's financial burden in the event of the acquisition of the company's property; and that the project is warranted by the needs of the community.

2.—That the commission consider only the testimony produced at a public hearing, supported by oath, and subjected to cross examination.

3.—That the lower Sacramento project be condemned, and that the application of the water company to issue bonds to finance the project be denied.

Speaking before the meeting on behalf of the City of Richmond, City Attorney D. J. Hall, said in part:

"Richmond looks upon this scheme of the water company as a movement to block the utility district project. In 1912 when Richmond faced a water shortage and a plan was submitted to a vote to use the Sacramento river water, the proposition was turned down by a large vote. At the time the city was placated with signs protesting, 'Don't vote for Sacramento sewage.'"

"Subsequently we were given good cause to believe that this educational campaign had been financed by the heads of the water company. Also, when the company wished a title to the watershed lands, it denounced the very kind of water it now hopes to supply. In reply the city council of Richmond tonight adopted a resolution protesting the application of the water company, and asking the commission to save the district the expense of extended litigation by denying the application forthwith."

K. E. Gray, of El Cerrito, said in part:

"El Cerrito voted for the water district and the people of El Cerrito stand behind it. The district put the Sacramento scheme down once, and El Cerrito would like to see it put down again."

Other communities represented were Oakland, Alameda, Berkeley, San Leandro, Albany, Emeryville and Hayward.

The way to solve the Cross Word Puzzle is to fill in the white squares of the diagram with the words which agree with the accompanying definitions. The definitions are numbered to correspond with the numbers on the diagram.

Any word defined in the text under "HORIZONTAL" will begin at its number, shown on the diagram, and will extend all the way across to the first black space to the right of that number. That is, the word must begin in the square that contains its identifying number, and extend as far as the white squares continue uninterrupted. Any word defined under "VERTICAL" will also begin in the white space that contains its number, but will extend downward as far as the white space remains uninterrupted.

Europe Makes Most Headway In Air Traffic

(In the following article Universal Service's Staff Correspondent in Paris, himself a former aviator, traces the progress of French commercial aviation from the war to the present day.)

By BASIL WOOD
(By Universal Service)
PARIS, March 31.—If the ratio of progress already set us is continued during 1925 this year will see gigantic strides in European commercial air navigation.

Some idea of this progress may be obtained from the following figures:
In 1919, when commercial aviation was born, French airplanes made 988 voyages. In 1920 they made 2,386. In 1921 the figures went to 6,252. The next year the ratio was not so great, but 7,561 voyages were effected. During 1923 the total was 9,720, while last year commercial airlines made approximately thirteen thousand trips.

In the first year of commercial carrying airplanes flew a total of 265,184 kilometers, or approximately six and a half times around the world. In 1921 the total had risen until the globe had been encircled fifty-eight times.
And last year the total of miles flown, if placed end on end, would have taken commercial airplanes flying from French airports ninety times round the world. Nearly 5,000,000 kilometers and been flown showing a progress of 1,000 per cent since the war.

These figures are important, for they show that whatever the United States and Great Britain may be doing, France in aviation matters has not faltered upon the program she undertook when the necessities of war aviation ceased.

Similarly, 16,511 passengers were carried by French airplanes last year, as compared with the comparatively insignificant total of 588 in 1919, 1,771 in 1920, 19,619 in 1921, an exceptionally dry year; 5,592 in 1922, and 11,638 in 1923.

The totals of merchandise carried has steadily mounted from 17,000 pounds in 1919 to 2,000,000 pounds in 1924.

PUBLIC LIKES AIR MAIL
During 1919, 1920, and 1921 the public were slow to take advantage of the air mail. In 1921 the total carried approximated 70,000 pounds. But beginning in 1922 businessmen and the public in general awoke to the tremendous saving to be effected by using the aerial postal service.

Postal packets carried in 1922 approximated 330,000 pounds. The next year this total had more than doubled, while last year more than a million pounds of mail was carried by French airplanes to interior points and to destinations in England and all over Europe.

The great drawback to commercial flying has always been considered to be the risk involved.

Thousands of persons will not fly because they are afraid they might be killed.

It is therefore a revelation to learn that—
In 1923 there were 6 accidents, 12 killed and 13 wounded.
In 1921 there was 1 accident, 1 killed and none wounded.

Compare this with the distance flown: ninety times the circumference of the globe, and it will be seen that compared to other means of transportation, flying is incomparably safer.

Another commonly conceived drawback is the so-called irregularity of commercial flying. Yet how about the pilot Dierflinger, on the Toulouse-Airbus route, who in eighteen months has flown no less than 125,000 miles without the slightest accident to himself, his passengers or his machine.

On the Paris-London 12,500 voyages had been effected from 1919 to November 1, last year. Four million seven hundred thousand kilometers had been flown. Forty-five thousand, nine hundred passengers had been carried. Merchandise to the value of 512 million francs had been transported.

On this same line there was one accident for each 2,502 voyages, or one accident for 23 times around the world!
ACCIDENTS INFREQUENT
Only one passenger in 2,869 met with an accident; and the value of merchandise lost amounted to exactly one franc on each 3,712 francs transported.
The Franco-Rumanian company, created in 1920, had a rapid evolution. In 1920 its lines functioned from Paris to Prague, about 1,000 kilometers. In 1921 it pushed on to Warsaw, 1,500 kilometers; in 1922 the route was Paris-Prague-Vienna-Budapest-Bucarest-Constantinople, or 3,144 kilometers. Last year the line was extended five hundred kilometers further to Angora, and this year it will be pushed on to Basra. The ultimate destination of this line is Calcutta, via Angora; and Moscow, via Prague.
The regularity of the voyages effected is literally stupefying when one considers it in the light of oft-repeated criticism. This regularity was approximately 99.7 of a possible 100 during the year 1924.

My Matrimonial Vacation

by VIOLET DARE

AUTHOR OF "The Half-Time Wife," "The Husband Tamer," "One Wife on Approval," etc.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

NANCY LARRABEE becomes a matrimonial free lance when her husband, a young army officer, is sent to the Philippines on foreign duty. Nancy stays home with her mother.

VIRGINIA, who uses the girl's charm and beauty to help get what she wants in the world of society. Their landlady.

FRANK HARRISON, falls in love with Nancy, who tries to transfer his attentions to her mother, who is nearer his age. She gets into difficulty there, as she also does when trying to straighten out the matrimonial tangles of her other friends.

Nancy visits the tropics with NATHALIE and DICK JORDAN, and with them goes to the island home of BILL EWING, who has taken refuge there as the result of an unhappy love affair.

Ewing falls in love with Nancy, and she decides to divorce her husband and marry him.

TODAY'S INSTALLMENT

XXXVI—HOME AGAIN

I DID NOT send Virginia word that I was coming home, so when the steamer reached New York I had nobody to meet me.

It seems to me that there's nothing much more dismal than arriving in a city, even if it's your own home, and not having anyone to meet you. It didn't take me long to go through the customs, as I had only a little overnight bag, and hadn't bought anything in the West Indies. I got a taxi at once, and started on the long drive home, my thoughts in a turmoil.

Somehow, back in New York, Bill Ewing seemed very far away, almost as if I had dreamed the whole thing. I stopped and called Jim on the way home. I didn't want to wait till I got there and told my plans to Virginia before I did it. She had such a way of arguing me out of things, and though she had never cared for Jim and had done her best to make trouble between us, I knew that she'd want me to wait till I could find out more about Bill before I did anything.

She was not at home when I got there. Our little maid followed me into my room, and told me all the news. I had always liked her, and had never discouraged her in her habit of gossiping.

"I guess your mother's going to marry Mr. Harrison, all right," she announced. "He takes her out all the time; she's having luncheon somewhere with him now."

Well, Virginia did become Mrs. Harrison, I told myself. She wouldn't nag so at me, urging me to make a rich marriage, then. But, of course, when I married Bill I'd have nothing to scold me for then!

There was an attractive French restaurant nearby, and when I had rested awhile I dressed and went there for luncheon. Hoping I'd see someone I knew. I felt very lonely, suddenly. Nick was the only person I could think of who'd be a sympathetic companion, and he might not be particularly sympathetic, as I'd run off to the tropics without even calling him up to say goodbye.

I even tried to get him on the telephone before I left home, but at his office they said he'd gone out and had no left word when he'd be back.

I felt lonelier than ever when I entered the restaurant and sat down at a corner table. New York was such a big, empty place when you're alone! And everyone else seemed to be having such a gay time, and enjoying life so much.

I had almost finished luncheon, and was wondering what I'd do next, and how long it would be before I heard from Jim, when a man and girl entered the restaurant. I couldn't see their faces, just at first, but I noticed the way the man took the girl's arm, and drew her aside as another woman almost bumped into her.

Quite obviously, he cared a good deal about her—he was so eager to look out for her. Well, that was the way Bill would be with me, I told myself, by way of consolation.

And then they turned, and I saw their faces. It was Nick and his wife!

And when I went away I'd had to urge him to go to see her, and he had insisted that since she had left him and said she never wanted to see him again, there was no reason for his going to see her simply because she had changed her mind about him. And he'd insisted that he cared more for me than he did for her!

A sickening thought came to me. Would absence act that way with Bill Ewing?

Perhaps I was foolish to burn my bridges behind me. But I told myself that I didn't care what happened. I'd gone through the force of being Jim's wife long enough. And it was Nick and his wife!

I could depend on Bill, always! I finished luncheon and rose to go. On the way out I passed the table where Nick and his wife were sitting. They glanced up as I passed, and Nick jumped up and held out his hand.

"Nancy! It's great to see you again. Oh, Nancy—you met my wife some time ago—"

She held out her hand, graciously enough, but not too cordially.

I couldn't help being malicious. "Celebrating a second honeymoon?" I asked, smiling. I begrudged them their happiness, when mine was so far away.

Nick's wife glared at me, but he just laughed.

"Yes, we're making up for a foolish mistake—aren't we, dear?" he said to her.

She nodded, and I left them smiling into each other's eyes. What a funny world. Married, divorced, remarried—how many couples there were like Nick and his wife, who played with the marriage laws as if they had no meaning. "Love, honor and obey"—meaningless words, now.

My thoughts swung back to myself. I'd taken those same vows in the beautiful chapel at West Point, with Jim—and now I was planning to take them with someone else just as soon as I could.

"Till death do us part"—I'd have that omitted from the next marriage ceremony that I participated in, I told myself.

SPORTS

SPORTS, FOR SPORT'S SAKE

By HERBERT REED
(By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, MARCH 31.—Columbia, one of the eight schools which combine to make up the Eastern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, has a pretty problem on its hands, judging from the first trial of the varsity eight crew on the Harlem river today. As any of the entries, the problem is to make the famous Yale combination, stroked off by the equally famous Al Hildley, go on through a hard short-distance season after that troublesome opening engagement and then come through credit in June—late in July over four miles against what probably will be some of the greatest Varsity eights the country has ever turned out.

To accomplish any such task, with any real lasting credit, demands the development not only of a high class crew, but of a stroke who approaches genius. From what I saw the other day the high class crew is in the making, under the sound coaching of Fred Miller, and his assistant, Washick, who stroked the Varsity of a year ago, and there has been a tentative effort to find just the sort of stroke that is needed.

March rowing, of course, is one thing, and June another, but even in March one looks for a little encouragement and it seems to be at hand. There has been a better turnout of oarsmen than usual, this in only the second year of Miller's regime, and the rowing spirit of the whole institution seems to have undergone a remarkable revival. There will be changes in the boat-arms from time to time, undoubtedly changes in the rising once the men can get down to their work, and certainly new shells and new cars. The cars, just now, are most needed, but the shells will help a lot when they arrive. The rowing is high, of course, all through the boats, the watermen by a squad of more experienced men has been able to show, and a deal ship better on the first day after than of "crew feeling" in. In fact, this that follows makes its appearance so early in the season. With all the faults, all the shortcomings, plainly in evidence, it is hard to even now to give some idea of a boat what type of Varsity eight Columbia will send into the big event's. In the first place it will be a light crew, weighing probably not more than average of 167 pounds, but with the weight as well as the height and the power between port and starboard better distributed by far than was the case a year or so ago, or for that matter in some years.

If Richardson, the red-headed, straight-backed young sophomore who has yet to appear in competition at Pomfret, keeps up his good work, lives up to his promise, he may prove the solution of a large part of the problem, just as was Al Hildley at Yale. Richardson has style and no mistake. Just why he was overlooked in his own class contingent a year ago, is difficult to understand. At present his rising does not fit him any more than does his car. He isn't right, yet, on the water, but with Tihonen, the captain, following him at No. 7, Columbia seems to have an "engine room" that at the least is promising. It is not often that one finds stroke and starboard pacermaker so well together the first time on the water as a team. Yet that is just what does turn up in the Columbia shell. With a crew of the present weight, the 1913 shell carries the boatload entirely too high. That can be corrected to some extent by rigging, but the ship seems to me to be too big for the crew just now.

COACH MILLER ADVISES COLUMBIA CANDIDATES FOR FRESHMAN CREW BEFORE THEIR FIRST WATER TRIAL

One of Columbia's largest crew squads, numbering 110 candidates, reported recently to Head Coach Fred Miller for the first practice session since the middle of December. The freshmen class was at attendance honors. The photograph shows Miller lecturing the freshmen before starting from the crew room for the first trial on the water.

The blue work, considering the oars, and the rather sticky locks, is remarkable good. The fact remains that the crew is rolling badly in spite of the fact that it is better and faster than any of the other combinations so far. Let's Jackson, Therold, Baddine and Wacker, "take it away" from the two pacermakers, thus providing an eight with three Varsity veterans, but a better match-

Carquinez Golf Plans Tournament

The opening of the second nine holes of the Carquinez golf course will be celebrated on next Sunday by a 12-a tournament which will last for the entire month of April or until all match play has been finished and the championship determined. The winner and the runner up in the championship class will receive prizes. Three prizes will be given for low net score, low gross, and high gross score in the qualifying flight.

Qualifying flights may be played at any time, but all scores must be turned in by 8 a. m. April 6. The handicaps will be figured from these scores.

Plans are being made to make this initial tournament a success so all members are urged to participate, as they are all eligible. Announcement of the nature of the prizes will be made within a few days.

Tells Rheumatics to Begin on Salts

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion are nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acid fluids and gases, which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, while it is effervescent, and furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief often follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of stomach sufferers with excellent results.

CHARLEY (PHIL) ROSENBERG IS THIRD BANTAMWEIGHT CHAMPION IN 3 MONTHS

The bantam crown is restless these days. Within three months after Eddie (Cannonball) Martin had wrested it from the head of Abe Goldstein, it was knocked from his row by Rosenberg, another New York boy. Like Martin, Rosenberg won the title on a decision after fifteen rounds of hard fighting in Madison Square Garden.

IRISH FREE STATE ARMY THIRD OF FORMER STRENGTH

(By Universal Service) DUBLIN, March 25.—John Dillon, veteran Irish politician, recently denounced the Free State government for maintaining a large army at a time when economies were urgently needed. The fact is, however, that the Cabinet has been steadily reducing the military establishment of the country.

Today, in the 26 counties, the strength of the army is less than a quarter of that of the British forces stationed here even in pre-war days, when there was little or no trouble in Ireland. Eighteen months ago the Free State army was 55,000 all ranks.

FATHER RICARD SEES STORMY MONTH AHEAD

SANTA CLARA, March 31.—Father Jerome S. Ricard, "padre of the rains," has issued the following weather forecast from his University of Santa Clara observatory for the month of April:

Dangerous frosts at sunrise happen when the air has been purified by rain.

Northern disturbances of some depth call for south and southeast winds more vehement at sea than on land. Conversely, southern disturbances call for north and northwest winds more vigorous at sea than on land.

April 1, 3.—Disturbances arriving from the west will make it rain from Vancouver down our way.

April 4.—Cloudy with sprinkles.

April 5.—Clear or clearing with rain in favored spots at the eastward. High pressures will take positions in higher latitudes.

April 6.—Rain on and near the northwestern coast, with a chance of its coming hither and stretching further to the southward, disturbing wet goods.

April 7.—Cloudy; another chance for rain.

April 9, 10, 11.—Fair.

April 12.—Fair down our way, but disturbed in the northwest.

April 13.—Raining from Vancouver to Eureka and Sacramento, whence the leap hitherward and beyond will meet with no obstruction.

April 14.—Clearing and sprinkles.

April 15.—Fair, but under a cloud; arrival of cool waves which means only a barometric raise.

April 16.—The northern disturbance just announced, gaining in depth and extension and seeking to reach Byron and San Francisco. Lots of trouble in the former town.

April 17.—Becoming fair.

April 18, 19, 20.—Fair over practically the whole littoral.

April 21, 22.—A rather severe depression to affect the whole coast and refresh the parched fields.

April 23.—Clearing, showers.

April 24.—Becoming fair here, but raining over parts of the northwest, while a small depression is running to the eastward.

April 25.—Fair over the whole coast.

April 26, 28.—A new disturbance over the northwest, with a poor chance of its moving southward, which means fair in central and southern California.

April 29.—Fair.

April 30.—Same cloudiness, but yet fair.

N. B.—There will be disturbances May 1, 4, 9, 12.

April Fool Dance Program Tonight At Winters Hall

April 1, being April Fool Day, the dance at Winters hall will, of course be an April Fool dance. Everything will probably be foolish and the only thing authentic will be the promise of a good time.

13. Fox Trot—Limehouse Blues.

14. Waltz—Kiss Me Good-night. (Not so very foolish.)

"Gay" Vargar, the popular trumpet player of the orchestra will render a vocal selection entitled, "Too Tired" which is number 6 on the program. Air conditions and static permitting.

Concord—$13,500 school building to be erected in Pacheco district.

Chateau Battle Vivid Spectacle of Mob Tenacity

Ruthless destruction, vindictive savagery, marked the scenes picturing the attack on the chateau in "The Man From Brodney's" which will be shown at the Wesley M. E. church Friday evening.

Under the direction of that master of realism, David Smith, one of the greatest battles, one of the most desperate flights ever pictured, was carried on for days until the cast and production crew were ready to drop from exhaustion.

Goaded on by the sharp, incisive commands of the director; urged on by flying tongues of his staff of assistants, the action of the hundreds of actors portraying the scene was lashed to a fury unparalleled.

Taunted about their weakness and lack of determination in bursting through obstacles until with almost insane fury they storm the gate in the face of a desperately determined resistance on the part of the defenders, risking dangerous powder wounds, they swarmed over the massive gates; a human ladder forming in an instant over the swarmed the maddened attack. Heavy sledges wielded by herculean giants tore asunder the bars fastening the gates and the horde poured through. Hungrily they attacked the defense, headed by J. Warren Kerrigan and the rest of the male cast. Real blows struck in simple self defense as the enraged attackers endeavored to show that they could and would make it a desperate and vividly graphic scene.
